

Residents are the ones who are left after everyone else goes home, and that's when you really know you're the residents.

We can also watch cooking shows. But they're not for us. They're for people who have refrigerators, and stoves, and foods we can't get.

Residents need the freedom to succeed in a place they can call their own, with the responsibility this freedom engenders.

I get on the bus and it's liberating. I'm part of the world, a member of society, with people who treat me with that respect.

This is the chance for residents to pursue their hopes and dreams. Give residents this chance, with this Settlement agreement – to start anew, and to contribute – for the mutual benefit of all.
